Daniela: (Dani, Mexican) OUR MOM! Too perfect. Being shushed, as usual (especially by Paula, who's also correcting her English) for singing waaaaay too much. We learnt from her that only female mosquitoes bite and that elephants have four knees. She might also be thinking what to tell Tyler next time she sees him, or saying random curious facts about animals, health care and useless stuff. 4 words: frogs, hats, books and football (especially Dallas and Baltimore, don't bother arguing)... that's her.

Maria Jose: (Majo, Mexican) Spending time with Irantzu, probably breaking the silence with her quiet and discrete laugh. She could be the one who visited the other girl residences the most. Might also be trying to find her visa under her room disaster which would look like a tornado went by if it wasn't because the other half of the room has been tidied up by her roommate Daniela.

Michelle: (Mich, Toronto, explains her accent... MAN!) The one who should be the most tanned judging by the amount of days she wore short shorts... if the weather hadn't been so bad she probably would have gotten a good tan. She might also be thinking of shopping or how to impress everyone once AGAIN with a cool new outfit. Blue eyes and blonde hair, great combination.

Juliana: (Jules, Colombia) Big lips, make up, dark eyes, crazy style, big personality... no wonder she got all those boys in line!! You might also see her dancing to the rhythm of the music in her room, full of clothes from other girls mostly (no joke, when saying she left with something from each one of us). Jules, we missed you the last few months!

Jessica: (Jess, Nova Scotia) Thinking of a particular small Mexican ALL OF THE TIME (Jose, you've taken her head away a lot eh? You owe us, you annoying little dude) that's if she's not thinking about hockey, which she's really good at (one of many sports). She could also be brightening everyone's day by joking and laughing, if she's not crying thinking about how much she will miss Jose.

Mariana: (another Mexican) Girls screaming at her when she says her hair is ugly after we complain about ours (her hair was perfect even after 4 days in the woods). Taking more of her amazing pictures. Also, breaking some other Mexican hearts while being with Eloi. All about Peace n' Love. Everyone loves her! Trying to call Captain Grec but something goes wrong...Right Mariana? When she actually gets it, orders by the name MARIA.

Fernanda: (Fer, ahem... Mexican) Breaking some other hearts, why not? Being an all aggressive Rugby player. Small, but her personality makes up for it. Always with an injury somewhere, if it's not the ankle, it's the wrist, if it's not the wrist, it's the finger. She should definitely give make up lessons, she's the best at that. Ordering food by the name MARIA.... once again. "Innocent" little thing :S (always finds a way for breaking another rule).

Capucine: (Paris) Thinking about écureuils (or squirrels as she might try to say in English) while spending time with Romy, any animal turns her crazy. HAT LOVER! Longest hair in the house. Wait, no. School. The one that improved the most in her English, seriously! Never able to wake up on time...ever. Guess she likes sleeping or simply has great dreams. As good at sleeping as she is at painting.

Clementine: (St. Barths) Small eyes... cough, cough. The one we will NEVER forget. Always shushing people louder than how they were talking, and practicing her Spanish with all of the Mexican girls in the house, which by the way, is not that bad, judging by the fact she could have a French accent, as all the other French do. The one who took advantage of the piano. Always late.

Paula: (Pau, *cough* Mexican *cough*) If she's not with Daniela, Gabriel and you already looked with Conss, Tyler, Fer or Mariana, she might be lost... in a conversation she stopped understanding on the first word, and pretending to understand the second time they tell her. The one who comes up with all the stupid, if not stupidest comments. She might have been the only one that took pictures of her own eyes (she does have amazing eyes), and the one that loved to write so much she even wrote her fantastical (literally) own biography on Wikipedia, (which don't even bother looking for, cause it was erased for "vandalism").

Romy: (Austria, Germany, Canada and soon enough Mexico with all the Spanish she gets). Shockingly, not the only ROMY in the school. Outdoor activities, especially climbing trees, which she's an expert at. Such a marshmallow! We love her. Broke some hearts, eh? Sweet one with no question. She invited us to her house, we spent a long time watching her cows and feeding them, and then after we finished eating our burgers she decides to announce we are eating her cows.

Constanza: (Conss, guess?! Mexican...) Teasing Tyler and Paula (or saying awww after everything she says) listening to music with her broken earphones (she could make good use of a new ipod too). The only original Mexican in the house, who lives near the beach, and is envied for that! (SU PUEBLO). If you want to know the latest gossip, she's the one to ask. Orders food by the name MARIA (gosh, this MARIA has a big stomach, doesn't she?) you can find her with any Mexican, especially the ones in the house.

It's 7:15am, and Grier South is sleeping, until James and Ricardo go around doing the wake-up. You can see them battling from room to room trying to get people up. After some hard work, people begin to go to shower and get ready for school. You can see people running around looking for their number 1's, blazers, ties, or their lost shoe. Also you can see people running to grab their computers to finish some of their last-minute homework, usually remembering after someone had reminded them: hey, did you do the French project?

By 7:35am, you can already see how the day is unfolding; Leong's impeccably dressed waiting for his brother, Chon, and Javier P waiting for the French gang, Eloi and James. And as soon as Mr. Bray yells: 15 minutes!!! You see Marcelo running to the shower since the alarm "never went off". After a few minutes you can see the Mexican gang leaving the house, Gonzalo, Gabriel, Jose Antonio, Javier, Daniel, Ricardo, JP, Jesus and Alfonso.

As soon as crease is over, Leong, Chon, Mark, Keita and some other guys come back to play computer games. During the afternoon, people come and go. They usually come, take a shower, chill for a while, go to dinner and spend some time with friends at the student centre; Grier South is never empty. You can hear all types of music, from Alberto playing some relaxing piano tunes, to JP's noisy beats.

In South there is everything, from the adrenaline of James, Eloi and Javier P riding their skateboards outside the residence to the keen concentration that Mr. Furey and some other boys share while watching Jeopardy. From Spicy Mexican candies to Korean noodles. From tall guys like Jose Antonio, to short ones like Eric, as roommates they both get along pretty well.

Every person in the house has a talent: Eric, Sam, Ronald and Vincent's great ability for hockey, Gonzalo's ability to type faster than he speaks, Alberto's piano talent, Ricardo and Marcelo's ability of having the cleanest and neatest room all year long, Eric Shin's talent to get along with people of all Forms, JP's talent with the drums and the guitar, Leong's silent skill of yelling "prep is over", Jose Antonio's skill for football, Keita's ability to never leave his room, not even for House BBQ's, Mark's talent for asking for computer chargers, Alfonso, after going to Korea, has developed a great skill for making noodles. Jesus's ability of not getting his homework done, Chon's talent in math, Gabriel has one of the most curious talents of all, something we never thought man could do, barking. James, Eloi and Javier P are talented for their skateboarding. One of the best abilities of all is Daniel's ability to make everyone laugh. Javier's ability is in sports, just like Jose Eduardo.

We have a great mix of people from all over the world, different abilities, different languages, different personalities. We've a one of a kind house which we enjoyed for a year, we learned from different cultures and the best, we had fun!

Gonzalo: "Wait, I just got a new bbm message"

Alberto: "Chalupa!"

Marcelo: "Ne pas de legumes!"

Ricardo: "...(smile)..."

Eric Shin: "Mama chinita, papa japone..."

Jose Antonio: "Do you want to watch a movie?"

Eric Sam: "gah dee mah!"

Ronald: "Give me your computer"

JP: "Just because I'm black right?"

Leong: "..."

Mark: "May I use your charger?" or "You! You stole my charger!"

Keita: "Mrs. Braaay!"

Jose Ed: "Do you want to go to Williams?"

Eloi: "Do you have 25 cents? (while thinking of Mariana)"

Vincent: "Can we watch hockey?"

Alfonso: "Chalupa!"

Javier A: "Just because I'm Mexican, right?"

Daniel: "You won't sleep tonight!" or "Verdad amiguis?"

Jesus : "It wasn't me"

Chon: "Did you do your math?"

Gabriel : "...(barking)..." or "Aflac"

James : "Oh la la"

Javier P : "Yo, wazzup?"

When it's lights out at Grier North and Mr. Hopkins, our houseparent, seems to have gone to bed everything seems fine; at least for now...

But let's see what really happens when we're all supposed to be drifting away in our dreams. On the top floor, Ben and Kenny are in their room planning their next mischief. Suddenly, there is a faint yell from one of the rooms. It's Simon practicing his commands as he is getting ready to join the army. Khalid is going downstairs to make Arabic coffee with Salman. Passing by Kevin's we notice Kevin, Desmond and Amadeus playing War Craft. Gaspar is watching a late movie while his roommate Aymeric is surprisingly sleeping. Henri is randomly walking the corridor while Ji Han is trying to concentrate on his DJ skills. Angus is quietly reading his Manga. As we move down to the main floor we see Ty, Alex, James and Ming playing an intense game of "Call of Duty" while poor Frankie is pushed to the side trying to become the next rock star. Sylvester and Maxime are cheering on the Habs in playoffs. As we move down to the basement, Vincent is continuously on the phone with his mommy. Jeremy is nowhere to be found.

Our TODs do a lot as well. Mr. Gilman is busy reading his Harley magazines. Mr. Byrne is running up and down the stairs opening Tuck for us. James, our BU, is beat boxing somewhere. Jeremiah, our assistant houseparent, is playing "God of War III" on his PS3.

Now that you know what we're up to, I better go back to bed before Mr. Hopkins comes out and we get in trouble.

It is an hour before Chapel and the Ross Girls are having a meeting. They gather, quietly of course, in a classroom and sit down. As soon as they finish, they stand up and quickly find that the door is locked. They cannot get out!

Myriam quickly insists very loudly that everyone find a way to get the door unlocked.

Emma and Laura, the rugby fanatics, immediately start contemplating breaking down the door using their aggressive rugby skills and pure determination. Anna-Eve silently cheers them on, even though she has already calculated that it would be impossible.

Megan and Hannah C. quickly think up several realistic ways to escape, including bobby pins to pick the lock. What they do not know is that Helene has already slipped in between them and attempted to use a bobby pin. Unfortunately, she did not think that Max would quickly distract her by talking at high speeds about school, sports and life in general. Amelie backs her up, adding in small comments here and there in her cute French accent.

Penelope takes a quick look at the door, sighs and goes to sit down. She would try to help, but she has broken her arm...again.

Angela, Stephanie and Alyssa have already forgotten about the door. They are sitting in a triangle, discussing the latest happenings in the school.

Emilie has found her unused tree costume from Carnival and puts it on, wishing Gabriel had one just like it.

Romy and Karell float in and out of the small groups of girls, practically invisible with their small statures, yet very determinedly standing out.

The atmosphere would be even more stressful if not for Candace's jokes. Sarah quietly giggles along, not realizing she's already grown an inch in the five minutes the girls have been in the room.

Hannah W. and Emily chatter loudly in French over Victoria's basketball dribbling (she's practising to be BEAST for next basketball season).

Mrs. Holland is smiling and laughing at all the girls when suddenly everyone hears a loud laugh in the distance. They realize it is Marie, late as usual. She opens the door hurriedly, apologizing for being late and is pushed aside by the girls rushing out (of course, to attend class).

Welcome to Gillard House. I'll be your tour guide for the next little while. As we come in the front door you'll have to ask the visiting boys to move to one side. There are always a number of them waiting for our Mexican beauties!

On the first floor we have here the St. Barth's sleepover room. You'll usually find Apolline, Anais and Gladys snuggled up in here. As we move to the next room you will find Sophia having a much needed nap after many hours of studying. Her roommate LuLu is probably upstairs dancing with Fer, Alejandra, Marcela and Natalia. The other Natalia is running down the hallway now just in time for check-in as her cell phone continues to beep and sing noisily in her hand. As we move around the corner we find India perched atop a pile of clothes and books assuring Mrs. Carey that she can indeed study like that. Sarah is anxiously watching a Habs hockey game in the common room while her roommate Coralie is going over photos from her exchange trip to South Africa.

Irantzu is working on Carnival plans in the tidyest room in res. As we head upstairs we meet Yu Jin heading downstairs to quickly get a glass of orange juice before returning to her never ending pile of SAT books on her desk. Taylor is busy planning upcoming outings with friends to fit in between her busy horseback riding schedule. Aline is reading fan fiction and playing games late into the night in between studying. We can hear the strumming of a guitar as Jessica prepares for another Pub Night.

Catherine is heading down to Tuck to grab a pizza pocket before going off to meet James. We can't forget Lea, our student from Germany who is tending her bruises from the latest rugby match. Houseparent Tracy will be making the rounds soon while Ms McGurk is in the Common Room knitting. Nadia, Ms Dougherty-Hunter, Mrs. Carey and Ms. Vanier-Hartley will each make their scheduled appearances. We hope you've enjoyed this tour of our home and that you'll come back again to visit us. You're always welcome at Gillard!

It was great having so many dynamic students involved. We've raised slightly over $5000 to build a school in a developing country with Free The Children, either in Sierra Leone, India, Kenya, Sri Lanka, China, or Ecuador! The first round of votes was cast this year, and the other will be taken care of next year when the full $8500 will be raised.

Not to forget our awareness campaigns, like the letter writing for Ko Aye Aung, the Shoe Boxes, and Diversity Day; we did a lot for one school year.

Cadet Camp

This year the whole school headed up to Three Rivers, Quebec for our annual cadet camp weekend.

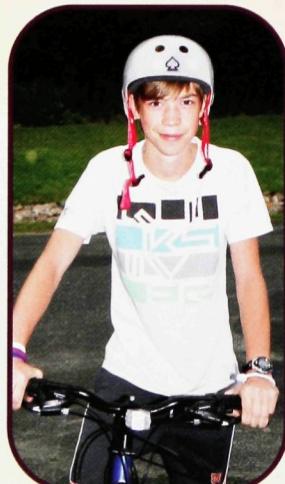

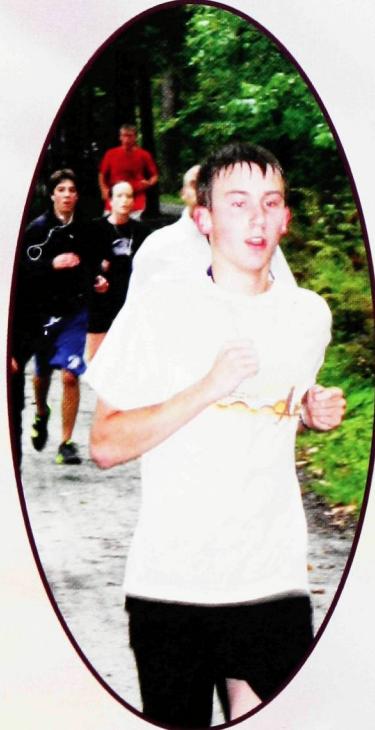

Throughout the next couple of days, the main goal was to have fun. This objective was achieved with great success! We were lucky enough to stay at the marine military camp and run various activities and games. Cadet camp was very different from previous years because the school was divided up into eight clans. At the end of the weekend, the clan with the most points- through team spirit and activities- would be crowned the winners. This created a lot of competition and positive atmosphere right from the get go. Since the St. Lawrence River was within a ten minute walk, whale boating became a part of the activities. We also were able to have the shooting again this year, which was the most popular. Overall, cadet camp allowed students to create bonds and friendships within the first week of school.

Remembrance Day was held in our very own Saint Martin's Chapel. A group of five prefects formed a colour party in which they presented the flags at the front of the Chapel.

Along with hymns and trumpet music, there were short speeches from three fellow prefects who each researched the life of one of the fallen soldiers. All of the BCS soldiers who fell during battle were named and in the end it was evident BCS played its part greatly in both Wars. Jessica Ross-Howkins also talked about her experiences during the "Vimy Trip" that she was on last summer - an educational tour dealing with the World Wars. It was a time of reflection and appreciation of what has been sacrificed in order to live like we do today.

Hope for Haiti

January 29 & 30

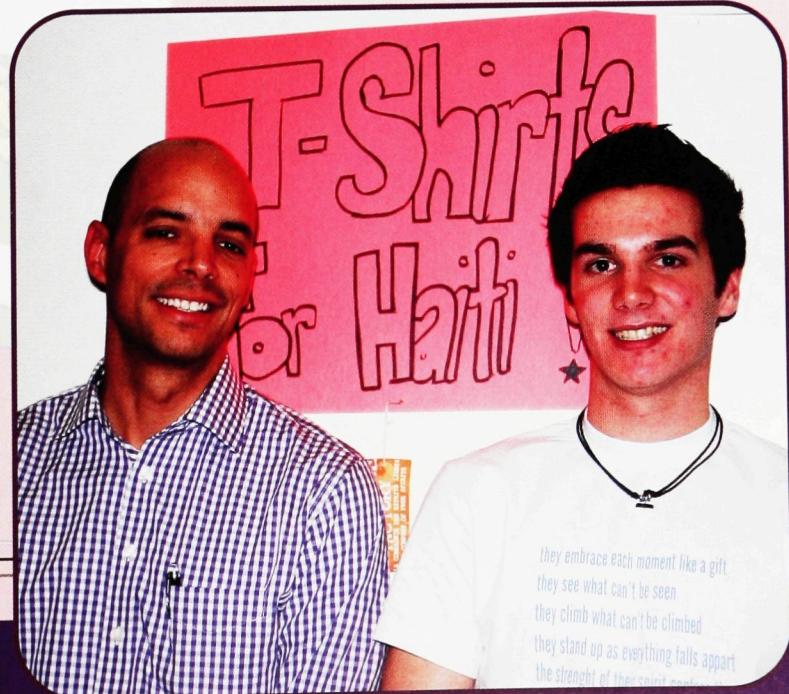

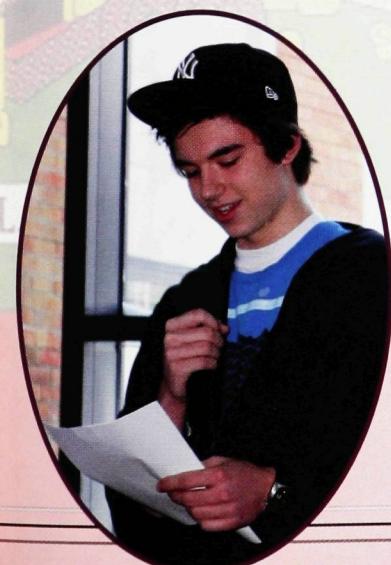

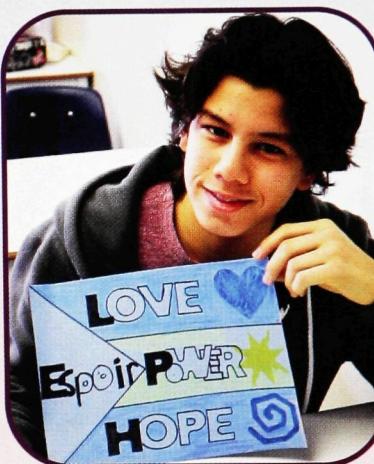

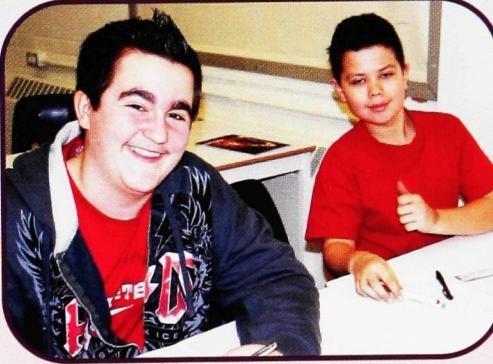

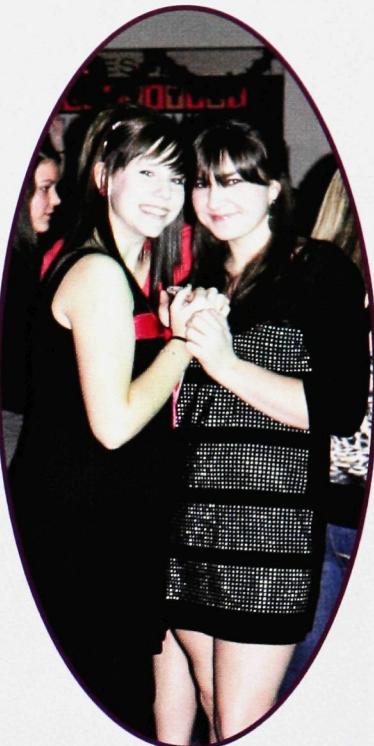

BCS held several fundraising activities for the people in Haiti. On Friday morning, students and staff participated in a writing marathon to encourage all Haitians to remain strong and courageous during a very difficult time in their lives. In the afternoon, many students skated in a hockey marathon. Others got involved in poster making and decorations for a school dance that night. Everyone wore the colours of Haiti and danced to lively music provided by Olivier De Feydeau and Parham ZaimZadeh. Several schools who were participating in the senior boys' and girls' basketball tournament also attended this event.

On Saturday the hockey marathon continued with BCS students starting the day at 8:30am along with the following teams: BCS Staff, Bishop's University Lacrosse team, with Drew Pollock as coordinator, Tyler Buckle's Coaster Team, the Lennoxville Old-Timers, and two teams from Steve Stickles 45 plus network.

During both days, Mrs. Shelley Bray organized canteens with student coordinators and T-shirts were provided by Mr. Patrick Le Blond. In total we were able to raise $7310.02 that was sent to Free the Children, an organization that will have this amount matched by the Canadian government. We hope our efforts will enable the people in Haiti to rebuild a better future.

A very special thanks goes to Mr. Kirby Nadeau for initiating and organizing the two day event!

During our February break, I was fortunate enough to be part of a group of fifteen BCS students who went on a dog sledding trip for 4 days north of Québec city in the Saguenay Lac-St-Jean area. The first morning, we went snowshoeing. We ate our lunch on a frozen lake. In the afternoon we chose from skating, sliding and playing hockey. We enjoyed our evening by eating marshmallows around the fire outside. The second and third days were spent dog sledding and we slept in the forest. Some students slept outside! The other part of the group slept in a warm cabin. On our way back to BCS, we stopped at Val-Cartier. We had a lot of fun sliding, but we were really tired!!

Sea kayaking in Belize

Imagine, open ocean and nothing on the horizon except a tiny island. That's your destination. This seems like a daunting task but it is one that four students, Sarrah Ewing, Jessica Ross-Hawkins, Nicholas Charlton and Aaron Morrow, and chaperons, Mr. Christian Daigle and Mr. Kirby Nadeau, tackled for two weeks.

We spent the first few days in the sweltering heat of Belize purchasing food and packing our bags. The next three days were spent 40 miles off the coast at Glover's Reef learning skills and tips for the upcoming journey and experiencing some of the most breathtaking coral reef to be explored in Belize.

Then the independent portion of our trip began! We were dropped off at Coco Plum Island and left to fend for ourselves for the next week. Each day brought new adventures and challenges: long kayaks where we saw stingrays and other aquatic animals, snorkelling through beautiful coral reefs, fishing with the locals, setting up camp and cooking our meals.

The last day took us back to Coco Plum. This part of the trip was the longest, over eleven kilometres of open water, and of course, the windiest day of them all. With a head wind of up to 20 nautical miles and swells up to ten feet, it was undoubtedly the most difficult leg of the journey.

The next day we were off to the jungle! Our time in the jungle was spent birding, riding peacefully in a tube down the Big Falls River, and having lunch with the locals. But the best part was heading deep into the jungle for the river portion of the trip where we paddled down the Moho River, navigating our way through rapids and over 15 foot waterfalls! The wildlife in the jungle was outstanding: iguanas, snakes, tarantulas, toucan and the tyra.

After surviving the jungle for three days, we were fortunate enough to see a local Easter celebration that only occurs every five years or so. It was named the Deer Dance and it represented the Mayan people coming together with nature.

It is hard to describe how this trip felt. It was eye opening, amazing, awe striking, thrilling, exhilarating, a once in a lifetime opportunity, incredible! Yet there seems to be only one word that truly captures the experience, and that is, Ondaatje!

Aaron Morrow, Form VII, Prefect

Stoker Arts Festival

April 17

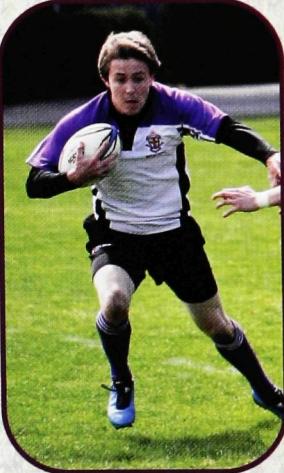

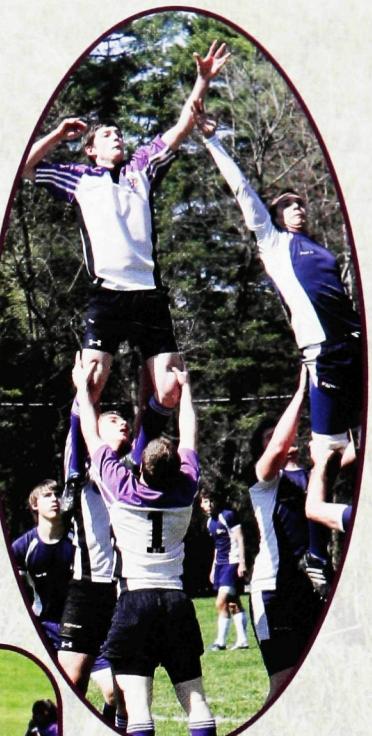

Our tribute day to the Arts began with students performing music and theatre.

Then for the rest of the morning BCS students, faculty and houseparents created something quite remarkable: an installation piece designed by our Art teacher, Mr Gilman was brought to life by every student at the school.

After two hours of working in groups of approximately 40 students, in 30 minute chunks, the Stone Spiral was created. It is a hybrid spiral-question mark. The spiral represents continuity and the link between the past and the present and the question mark reminds us that good questions bring growth and are the basis of education. The collaborative aspect of the work was also an important part of it as we are made stronger by those who work alongside us. Students not working on the spiral at any given time were busy making bracelets or creating a clay figure that will be fired in our kiln and set into the Stone Spiral at a later date. A piece of each student will be part of the Stone Spiral, literally. The stone spiral will be there, below Centre field, to admire for years to come.

April 23- 25 CAIS Rugby Tournament

What a great weekend! The weather was on our side and by the end of the weekend many red faces were walking around campus. The level of rugby for this time of the year was plainly beautiful to see and once again Bishop's College School did a superb job of hosting 22 different schools from across the country. They all loved the beauty of our campus and were very complimentary of the great job our staff was doing and were impressed by the school spirit displayed all weekend.

The tournament started on a great note when the Headmaster cancelled classes for the school to cheer on the boys' and girls' teams that morning. Signs were made and everyone dressed in purple to cheer on BCS. The remainder of the weekend continued with that same enthusiasm and spirit displayed by all who participated. We would all like to congratulate Ashbury (Girls' Champions) and Trinity College School (Boys' Champions) for winning the tournament this year. The finals were both excellent and the fans were treated to excellent rugby. A big congratulations to our Senior Girls' team who finished 3rd in the tournament. The boys finished 10th out of 16 and were finalists in the Bowl Championship. They played some excellent rugby in a highly competitive tournament.

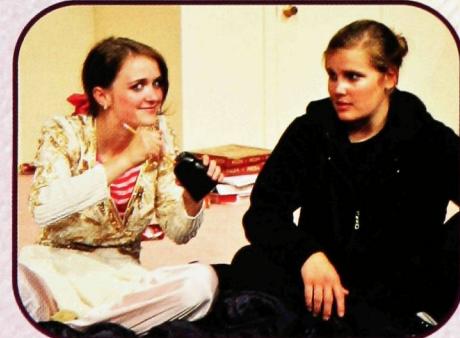

The tournament was a huge success thanks to all the people who helped, from the kitchen staff, the groundskeepers, the janitors, first aid volunteers and the list goes on, and especially to Mr. Jeff Bray and Mrs. Denise Addona for organizing such a great event.

BCS Drama presented an outstanding production of the Off-Broadway play, Criminal Hearts, April 28 - May 1. Written by the great American playwright Jane Martin and directed by BCS Theatre Teacher Dan Rae, Criminal Hearts had a cast of four veteran BCS actors who were spectacular.

Dylan Wayne as Robbie was completely convincing as a young man who was born to be a criminal, likable but dangerous and totally untrustworthy. Aaron Morrow as Ata's husband created a thoroughly despicable character audiences loved to hate.

In the lead role of Robbie's partner/boss/girlfriend Bo, Sarrah Ewing was sensational. A sweet-talking con woman, the audience loved her but never really knew whether she was lying or telling the truth. As Ata, the vulnerable victim, living in an apartment with nothing in it but Dr. Pepper cans and pizza boxes, Jessica Ross-Howkins was riveting. Her emotional Ata went lightning-quick from ebullience to apoplexy and back again in breathtaking bursts and she delivered remarkable speeches and monologs that left the audience alternately gasping, cheering or applauding mid-show.

World Cup Soccer

June 5

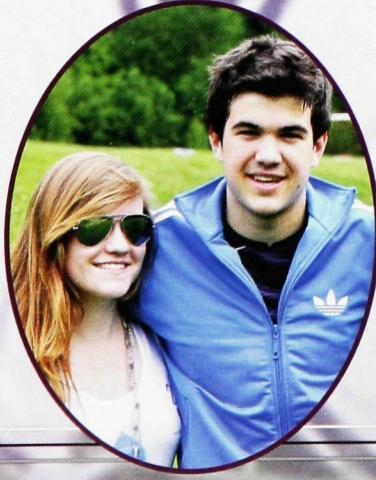

They may start the World Cup in South Africa on June 11, but it will struggle to match the enthusiasm and exuberance of the BCS Mini World Cup held on June 5.

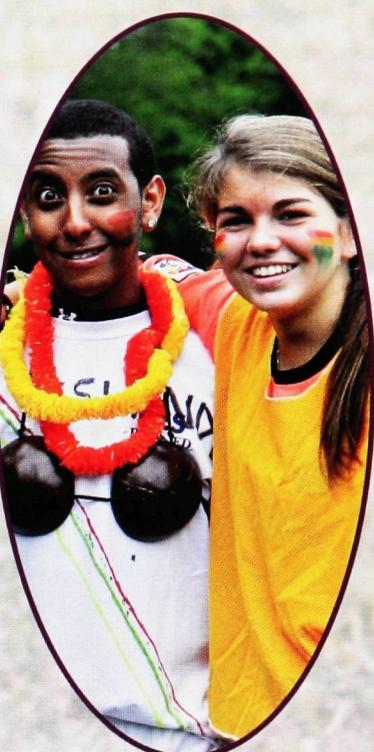

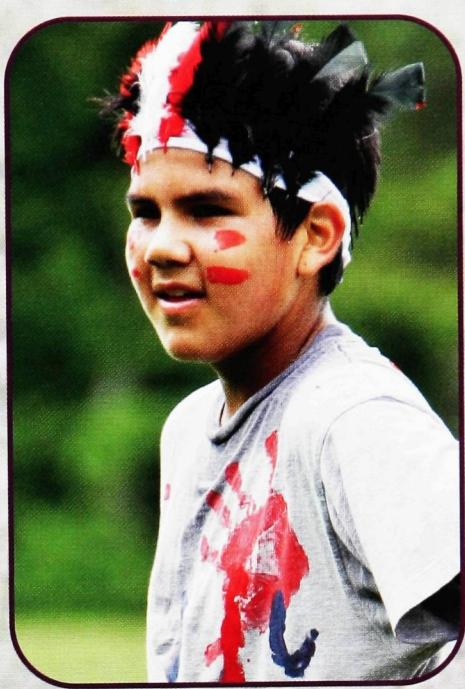

Eight teams were entered with boys and girls on the same teams. Players represent their own countries wherever possible, and those without enough fellow nationals form regional teams such as Africa, the Islanders or Asia. In order to allow as many students to play as possible Canadians could choose between Canada, Quebec or the Native Nations.

The spirit for the day was tremendous with a great deal of cheering and colour. The games were well contested, and players remembered the emphasis of the day is on sportsmanship and enjoyment rather than winning. As teams completed their games their supporters went on to cheer for those still playing, and there was a good crowd on hand for the final between Mexico and the Islanders with Mexico emerging on top in an open and colourful game. The spirit award went to the USA who will receive an all American treat courtesy of Advancement.

Mini World Cup Day is a day when we celebrate the Round Square pillar of internationalism as everyone comes together to play, and enjoy, some exciting soccer. Thanks to all who made it possible.

Round Square Service Projects:

Olivier de Feydeau POWERTRIPS, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC March 2010

As Audrey Hepburn once said: "As you grow older, you will discover that you have two hands, one for helping yourself and the other for helping others."

Before coming to BCS I was never given the opportunity to attend a service project. Through the round square at BCS I found out about Powertrips, a Canadian organisation which builds schools for unfortunate children in The Dominican Republic and, a few months later, I was on my way into a two week experience of a lifetime.

We were located at the Tubagua Plantation Retreat on top of a mountain overlooking the picturesque landscape of the Dominican Republic leading up to the Atlantic Ocean. Seventeen students, from four different schools in Canada, and seven adults put together the perfect team to face the deteriorating conditions of two local elementary schools. Shortly after meeting the other students and adults supervising the trip, we bonded and built strong friendships which made the trip a lot more fun and exciting.

The main goal of Powertrips is that we work together with the local people and teach them skills so they can continue to improve their lives even after we are gone. Together with Dominicans and Haitians we built four additional classrooms to existing schools, and decorated the interior walls with murals and built new furniture. We landscaped the area around the school to improve their playgrounds, adding sports equipment. A main part of the trip was also to organize workshops for the students, teaching them English, new games, and simple math, or getting them involved in small and simple jobs around the school. Long basketballs game between Canadians and Dominicans became a routine at the end of the day, which added to the friendships between the different cultures.

I have realized that running water, electricity, food, clothing, and family are not to be taken for granted and that it is the little, simple things we have to be thankful for. Even though I started the trip by my self I left with new friendships, great experiences and life changing memories. Powertrips 2010 was only the beginning of what I wish to accomplish in my future years in the Dominican Republic. The trip has changed me and the way I see the world. It truly was a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

Rachel Brodeur RSIS THAILAND Christmas 2009

Close your eyes and imagine. Imagine a place where roosters serve as alarms starting at 3 am. Imagine a village with 28 houses, 10 televisions, and only one refrigerator. Imagine a place where there is no such thing as the word "orphan" and there are more dogs than children. Now imagine that twenty teenagers and three adults from around the world are thrust into this situation and they have a vision. A vision to bring clean drinking water to Ban Mae Aeb Nai, a Karin mountain village.

Over Christmas break, I had the opportunity to spend twenty days in Thailand doing a work project. The first half was spent in the village digging trenches, building water tanks and laying pipes. The second half was spent in and around Chiang Mai participating in cultural activities such as feeding and washing elephants, visiting temples, doing a Thai cooking course, and exploring the area around our hotel.

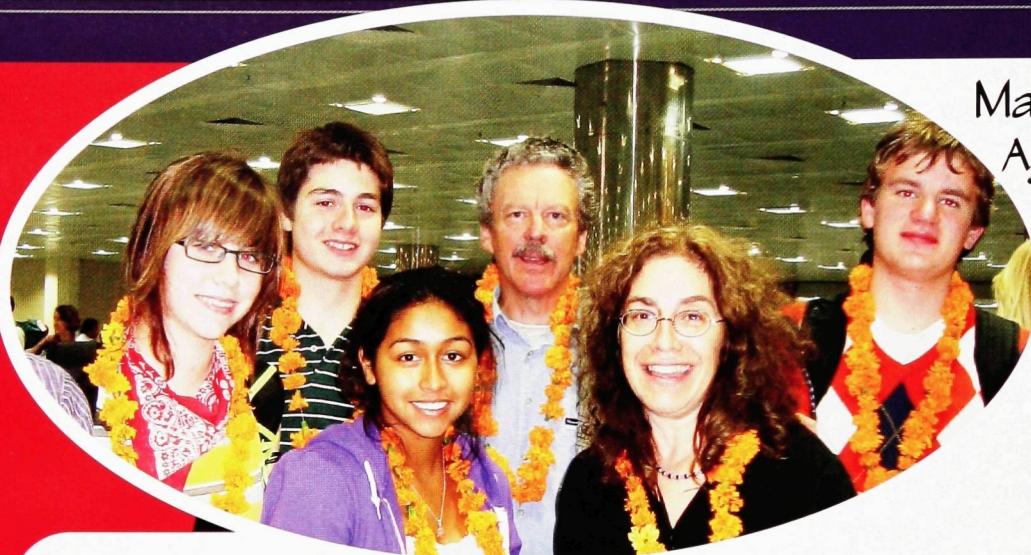

Although the second part was called the 'cultural phase,' I found that the first half of the trip was more culturally rich. Spending time living with a family and interacting with the villagers and other students is an experience that I will never forget. I got to see Karin village life in a way few people ever do and along the way, I found a new confidence and awareness of the world around me. Through the experience, we bonded and laughed through long work days and relaxing nights, until, at the end of the twenty days, every single person involved had made friends that will last them a lifetime. Despite missing a Christmas at home with family, I would do the whole thing again in a heartbeat.

Participating in a work project like RSIS THAILAND truly is a once-in-a-lifetime experience and I hope that many other students will take the opportunity to have such a magical experience like it.

Monty Brinkman Smith

Home Country: Canada

Lasting Memories: Five years have come and gone in a heartbeat and now it's time to move on. It's hard to sum up what a moment this is to finally end my time at BCS in a short paragraph but here goes. This year has been the best year by far, bio and eco class, the dozens of inside jokes and the amount of times I have cried out of laughter (thanks guys!). All the wonderful opportunities I have been presented with, exchange to Scotland, and all the friends I have made. A million thank you's to everyone that helped me during my time here (mom and dad, friends). I never imagined BCS would end for me, but it has. I will always cherish the awesome times I have spent here. It's been a great journey; thank you BCS!

Lasting Memories:

This is it guys, Pablo, Sam, King, Vaughn, Bob, Leo, P, Loriston, Bryce, Jana, Andres, Fab and Mario. We finally made it! Through all the good times, and the bad, the countless pranks, long nights in lenn, house restrictions, the claw, rap battles, manball, therapy Thursdays, the pub nights we never did, and many more. Winning the Hockey playoffs, the pumping cheers, the roar of the crowd, the victories, and the failures, we did it all together. When it first started, we wanted it to end. Now that the year is over, we don't want it to finish. But let me assure u, every time we look back at this year, it will only bring happiness and joy to us because good memories last forever. So when I look back at BCS, all I'll remember is you guys. Ella I'll miss you and thanks for everything.

Nic Bradley

Wow, six years, and I bet a lot of you never saw me coming this far, but the question is, how far did I come? How does one sum up six years at Bishop's College School? Well, let's take crease, band, cadets, mountain day, terry fox, annual cross country run, carnival and then let's throw some academic work in there too why not? I guess the best way to explain would be to say a blur. It feels like just yesterday my parents dumped a short blond kid off at the front door of Grier South, and the rest is what you would call history. BCS, even though I don't like to admit it, took that short, confused and un-athletic kid and turned him into everything a man should be. Everything I will ever need in life, I have probably learned at BCS, and maybe at the time I didn't enjoy it, but I know that I will soon owe everything I have to this school. BCS also introduced me to some of the greatest people I will ever know. Whether it was Mr. Maxwell blowing my mind in philosophy class, or Mr. Jackson convincing me that I actually was good at something. But as much as teachers are responsible for my experience here, my friends are what really mattered. At BCS, I have met some of the best friends I will ever know and stories? Oh I have many! But now it's time to say goodbye, no more mountain days, no more early prep, it's all over now. As my six years at this institution comes to an end, it is the end of an era. Even though my name may not live on at this school, even though in 100 years there might not be a Bradley house or a ten foot bronze statue of me in the quad, I know that, just like so many before me, I have worn down the marble steps, and so will many others. So in conclusion, I would like to thank everyone who helped and believed in me during this six year journey, and this is a message to a confused 12 year old child arriving at this school in the year 2011, these hallways may look huge, but the more you walk down them, the bigger you'll get. So, keep on trucking, I'm off to make trouble for a different kind of establishment. In closing I'd like to end with a quote from the song writer Brandon Flowers: "progressively, we all defend the role we play, regrettably, time has come to send us on our way, we've seen it all, bonfires of trust and flash floods of pain. It doesn't really matter, don't you worry it'll all work out, no it doesn't really matter, don't you worry about what it's all about".

Alexandra Gellinas-Roy

"You have to trust me on this one Alex, this is the right place for you" is what my mother told me when she left me at William's house for the first time. Six years ago, I was only a little French girl, frightened and worried about my future. I had no precise dreams or ambition but the need to learn was strong within me. I will always remember my arrival in September of 2003. It was a beautiful sunny day and everyone around me seemed cheerful to begin the school year. Friendly faces would welcome me and the only thing I managed to do was to smile since I couldn't speak English. All the other students seemed so confident compared to how I felt. I remember crying myself to sleep, wondering when that empty feeling inside my heart would finally disappear. It took me three months to really feel at home. It was at that time that I started to appreciate my parent's decision. Throughout the years, I have accomplished so many things. I credit BCS for making me the individual I am today. There have been many hard times through the years where I wanted to quit and leave everything behind but I stayed and from that I see how much stronger I have become. In this school, we learn how to push our limits to the very last drop of energy, to smile in the hard times and to focus on what is best. When I was younger, I wasn't really introduced to sports but here I've participated in many teams and discovered my love of running. I am the type of girl who runs on her free time and studies on Friday nights. Who would have ever guessed huh? I am now writing this essay, a month away from graduation day and I begin to realize that after all, I am sad to leave. When I came in form two, I would have never pictured myself becoming a prefect and certainly not a lifer. I have made friends that are from all over the world and I thank each of them for letting me become part of their lives. I will end my text with this: A caterpillar works tirelessly and intensely for days to transform into a beautiful butterfly. I feel it has been the same with me. Before, I was little and weak but now I've grown to be a strong woman with many ambitions. I went through events that made me stronger and I am now ready for the unknown future. Thanks Mom and Dad, I will never have the words to thank you for everything you have done for me.

Prefects :

This year's Prefects may seem all good willed and hard working, but how perfect are they really? The August Prefect Camp established that the Prefects truly did understand bullying, as they easily made examples of Mr. Marino as he flipped down Mt. Sutton, and of Mr. White as Sarrah got him into another headlock. The Prefects were quick to volunteer to put up decorations for the various holidays throughout the year, just not so quick on taking them down... two months later. The group even made skipping class and causing young students to cry look like a chore when they set up the Haunted House for Halloween. The Prefects were not shy when it came to Chapel readings, truly setting the bar for prefects years to come at what shouldn't be discussed in front of the school. Of course the biggest reward for being a Prefect is the cookies, sadly one day a macadamia nut batch was mistaken for snowballs which left the Prefect room "winter white."

In the end, we mustn't forget the achievements these brave young adults accomplished. Miguel and Patrick managed to get on the effort list, once, for the first time in three years. Sarrah, after finishing command of the cadet corps, being a Head Prefect, and completing her six Geo assignments, rolled an ankle and proved to us that she has a heart where her central processor should have been. Truckle set the BCS record for the nicest 360 on a snowboard, and it only cost him his ACL and two semesters of no crease. Ryder, the seemingly flawless Prefect, would have been such if he had only come to any of the meetings... wait, where is he? Now Rachel, unlike Ryder, actually came to all the meetings, good Prefect! Edgar managed to wake up for a duty or two, though sadly not his Advance Placement Calculus exam.

Alexandra is still on her way to perfecting her English, even with those countless weekend study hours. Jessica was always quick to stick up for the various nationalities at BCS, yet oddly always siding with the Arabians... Evan, the Techno Lion King, always had the gift of music, too bad he's the only one who benefitted from it. Finally, there's Aaron... Aaron was... well... the perfect Prefect? Good job buddy. All in all, this has been an epic year of Prefects. We can only hope that groups in years to come will live up to it.

Words from the Headmaster

A Yearbook is a series of snapshots in words and images that, when collected and compiled with sensitivity, purpose and vision, provides us with a way of remembering and knowing the year. For each of us, the 2010/11 academic year was different even as we each shared so many common experiences. Thanks to the student editors, contributors and Faculty advisors for so ably creating a unifying record of what could have come across as fragmentary.

We have pages dedicated to the particulars of Mountain Day, Spirit Days, Houses, Clans, teams, grads, Faculty and Staff. Like Inscape, we see ourselves reflected in written words and visual images created by our peers. Round Square, Cadets and Duke of Edinburgh provide such rich raw material for the refinement of student leadership experiences, and these are ably depicted in the Yearbook. Our experiences are simultaneously so diverse and so intensely personal that this text speaks to us as individuals and as members of various groups.

We are a community of communities. This collection shows we all did alright, and each of us often did much better than that. Thanks to all for leading, sharing and doing so much and so well.

Earlier this year in Chapel I shared with you my favourite poem, London, by William Blake, which references and provides forewarning of the incredible power and danger of "mind-forg'd manacles". To close out this year I offer some favoured opening lines of another poem.

I am currently 17 years younger than the voice in the poem Summing Up, by El Savadorian poet Claribel Alegria. She writes, as translated into English:

In the sixty-three years
I have lived
some instants are electric:

She then elicits images from a life that hums, crackles and snaps with energy. Such was this year. Such is this Yearbook. I hope you find, retain and enjoy your electric instants from this year.

As a community, we owe a debt of gratitude to those who graduated this year. The Class of 2010 consistently stepped up with maturity, poise, camaraderie and presence. There were strong individuals who combined to make a strong team. Those of us who work in schools know that what graduating students do in their final year lives on for years within a school community. Students look up and emulate, and what passes for leadership is mimicked and repeated as younger students advance to their own graduation. Each graduating class leaves a collective echo, and the call and response of the Class of 2010 is classy. We are fortunate that this year's graduating class will resonate positively for years beyond their graduation.

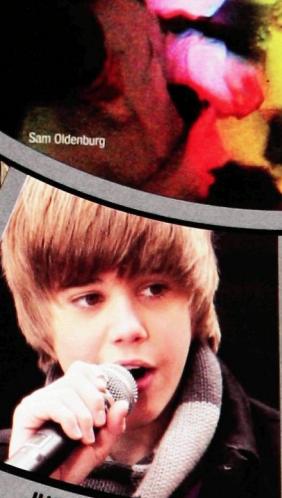

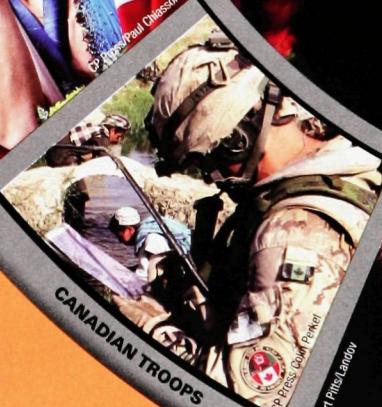

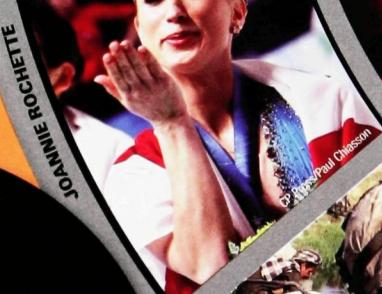

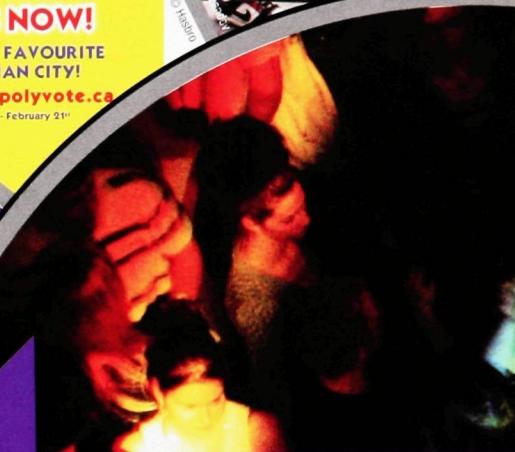

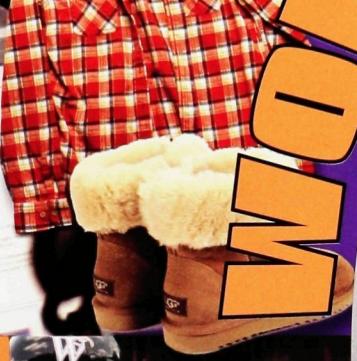

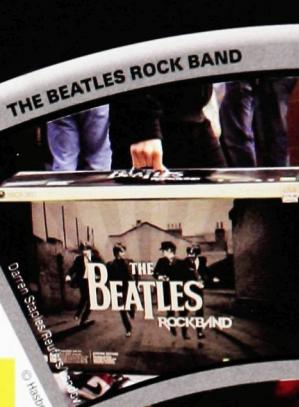

Certain critical, timeless elements of a BCS education persist and are embodied in the Class of 2010 and in this Yearbook. Your understanding of the power of relationships, the importance of actual face-to-face interaction, your pursuit of excellence within and beyond the classroom, and your ability to engage in the tough conversations in person - will hold you in good stead as you leave the smaller school of Bishop's College School and become part of the much larger community of fellow BCS graduates.

On a personal note, this year and this Yearbook both loom large for me, and will continue to do so as I look back on my first year as Headmaster of Bishop's College School. Many of you those veterans of BCS - have been here so much longer than me. Others, like me, were rookies trying to keep from making embarrassing mistakes while we tried to make sense of it all through our first year. Together, rookies and veterans, we have enjoyed a year of positive momentum, boundless energy and well-founded optimism.

This Yearbook is a testament to that year.
